Electronic Subscription Agreement

for orders taken via www.PersonalBest.com

Thank you for your interest in obtaining an electronic newsletter subscription from Oakstone Publishing, LLC dba Personal Best. We hope you will enjoy the added convenience and speedy transmittal that electronic delivery allows. To ensure that you fully understand the terms of the electronic subscription program, we ask that you read and agree to the following terms before implementation.

You have committed to purchase a license for distribution of the publication(s) not to exceed the specified number, as stated below. This includes individuals that may receive the publication through email, or the number of people that may potentially view the publication if posted on an internal network. If at any time you need to modify the quantity of your license, please contact us immediately and we will be happy to make the adjustment to your program.

You also agree to the following terms:

- That the file will not be distributed or sold to any other organization.
- And that the end recipient of the file (the employee or client) is allowed to print one copy of the file.
- The electronic publication is for personal use only. Resizing or reproducing the publication for the purposes of display or distribution is prohibited.

Federal law (17 USC 101 et seq.) provides severe civil and criminal penalties for the unauthorized copying or reproduction of copyrighted material.

Electronic materials are copyright protected. Receiving an electronic product does not give you any different rights from those available with a printed product. It is against the law to make a copy of any portion by any means without prior written permission from the publisher. Additionally, no portion of any publication may be posted to the world wide web (aka the internet). Penalty will be incurred for violations of this agreement and may be up to 300% of the cost of the materials.

By signing below, you confirm that you understand and are willing to abide by these terms.
